

Reagan requires 25 U.N. Soviets expelled by Oct. 1

WASHINGTON (AP) — The administration on Wednesday ordered the expulsion of 25 U.N. Soviet diplomats, but said the move was unrelated to the spy case Moscow has filed against an American journalist. Secretary of State George Shultz had said Tuesday night that the United States has a "plan of action" for dealing with the Daniloff case but declined to give details. He said the issue has "put a cloud" over Soviet-American relations.

Expulsion order

Last March, the Reagan administration announced that the Soviets would be required to reduce their U.N. staff from 275 to 170 over a two-year period in increments of roughly 25 every six months.

The Soviet delegation is more than twice the size of the next largest delegation.

Of the 105 to be sent home, a small number would be attached to the staffs of two Soviet republics, Ukraine and Byelorussia, both of which have U.N. seats. All 25 affected by Wednesday's announcement, however, represent Moscow's delegation.

But Kalb refused to say whether any had engaged in spying.

The Soviets have 243 diplomats attached to the U.N. while the two Soviet republics have a combined total of 32.

Diplomats fewer

A U.S. official who asked not to be identified said the Soviet total has dropped below 243, but added that the Soviets have never indicated that any of those who departed did so as a result of the expulsion order of last March.

In any case, he said, the Soviets will be operating under a ceiling of 218 until the United States orders the withdrawal of an additional group of diplomats, presumably next March.

Protest expected

Soviet U.N. Mission implicitly signaled that it will resist the order.

"I think there will be a protest," said G. Karymov, a senior Soviet official, told a re-broadcast by telephone. The diplomat, however, said the U.S. note would be studied by Moscow before a response is made.

The administration has promised compensation in the Daniloff case, but was categorical in stating that the expulsion order "is not related" to the case.

Technology aids rural area

BYU sponsors C. American farm program

By J. ALLEN Universe Staff Writer

Education and technology will aid families living on small farms in Guatemala in a new agricultural program from BYU, according to a Guatemalan government official.

Silvia Morales de Paniagua, a special envoy from the Ministries of Agriculture and Health from the government of Guatemala said the Small-scale Agriculture program, developed and run by the Ezra Taft Benson Agriculture and Food Institute, will be used by the Guatemalan government to make farming methods more productive and efficient.

"The whole thrust of the Benson Institute is to make small farmers and their families independent," said Laren R. Robison, director of the Ezra Taft Benson Agriculture and Food Institute. "We wanted to do something that would have an impact on some area that needs help."

The program, which has taken 8 years to develop, has been tested on prototype farms at BYU and by farmers in Ecuador, said Robison.

The program in Guatemala is expected to take three to five years to complete and cost approximately $1.5 million. The funding will come from a variety of international organizations.

The program, scheduled to begin in January 1987, will involve about 500 families, said de Paniagua.

The Benson Institute plans to educate farmers in ways to increase productivity, gradually improving economic conditions. The level of technology will also improve by introducing fertilizers, pesticides and simple machinery.

An Ecuadorian farmer standing in a soybean field that is part of an agricultural program sponsored by BYU. Soon, programs like this will begin in Guatemala.

If the program is successful, the government of Guatemala would like to adopt it nationally and continue indefinitely, said de Paniagua.

Guatemala has large-scale production farming, but it is the family farm which needs assistance, she said. "Where we are planning to introduce the program is a fairly depressed area economically."

Rural migration, where farmers move from the country to the city looking for improved economic conditions, is a problem facing the entire developing world, according to Robison.

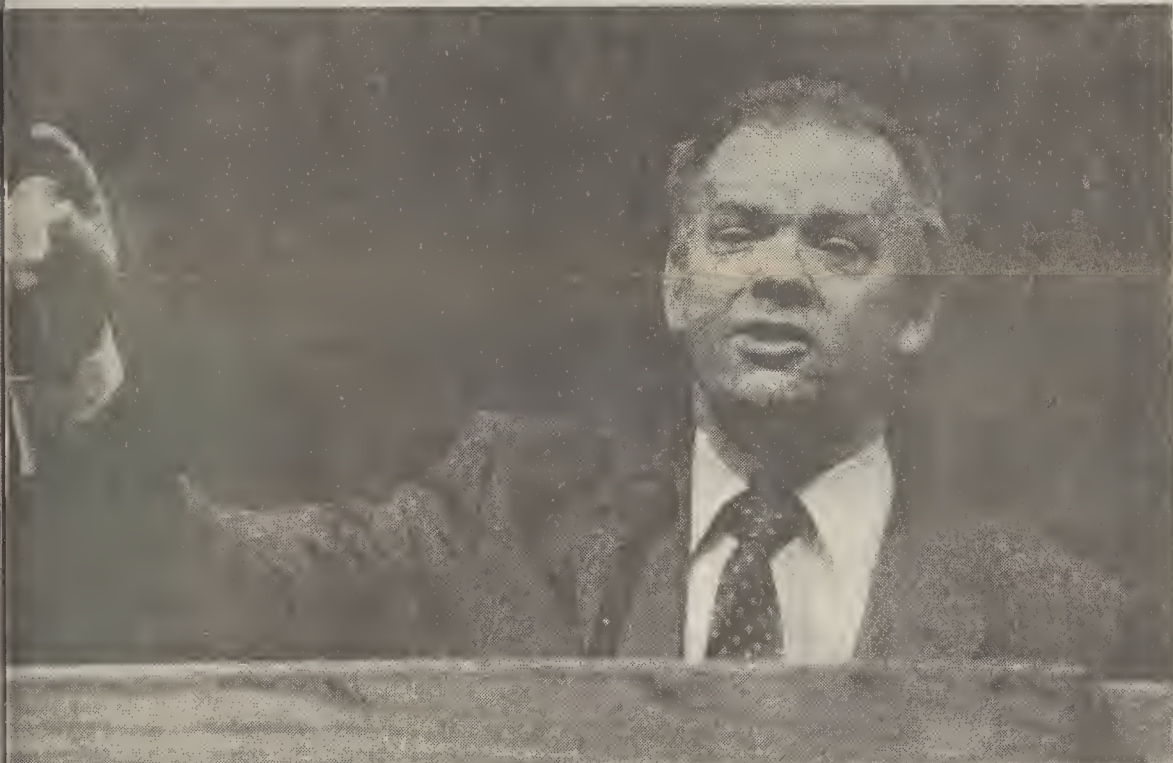

These farmers, generally unable to find work, form large impoverished communities around many of the cities of Central America, he said. These slums contribute to urban decay and may become sources of civil unrest.

The small scale agriculture program can stabilize countries by improving economic conditions for small farmers, keeping the farmers out in the country and away from the cities, said Robison.

"We have always had the problem of rural migration. One advantage of this program is that it slows that rate," de Paniagua said.

According to Robison, Lamond F. Tullis, associate academic vice-president of BYU has promised the full support of the university to the program.

Paul H. Dunn will speak today at the Provo Tabernacle at 8 p.m.

Elder Dunn to give seminar

Paul H. Dunn, general authority for the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, will give an address Thursday evening as part of a series of events dedicated to the newly dedicated 103-year-old Provo Tabernacle.

Dunn, a member of the First Ward of Seventies of the LDS Church, will give the teaching seminar at the tabernacle. The talk is to be held to the auxiliary and priest-instructors and is expected to be improving the quality of teaching in the church, according to Louis Crandall, the area publicity director.

Five days of special programs began Wednesday night with an organ recital and will last through Sunday when the building will be dedicated by Church President Ezra Taft Benson.

Although Elder Dunn's seminar is aimed at local Church instructors, the public is invited to attend. The meeting will begin at 8 p.m.

Construction on the Provo Tabernacle began in 1883 and was finished 15 years later.

The building recently underwent a three-year remodel and refurbishing project.

President Benson will give the dedicatory prayer on Sunday. Due to limited space, admittance to the dedication is by invitation only.

oo moo fizz fizz, oh ... Carbonated milk developed

Donald W. Meyers Universe Staff Writer The Associated Press

For the first time, the milk and Pepsi drinking character of "Laverne and Shirley" may jump for joy over a recent development in dairy science.

Researchers in Rosemont, Illinois are working on a carbonated version of milk that is supposed to eliminate the moustache on the lip and the film on the tongue that are familiar to milk drinkers.

"It's a lot like club soda," said Anthony Luksas, president of Dairy Research International.

"It's very refreshing. Normally, milk coats the mouth and people won't drink it to quench their thirst. But carbonated milk won't do that," said Luksas.

Researchers began toying with the idea about a year ago, said Luksas. "We asked ourselves, 'Why are we losing sales in whole milk?' We then asked, 'Are people drinking instead?' The answer was carbonated drinks."

"We could just capture 2 or 3 percent of the carbonated beverage market and wipe out the dairy surplus we have each year," Luksas said.

"The unflavored fizzy milk is good, Luksas said, fruit-flavored or cola-flavored milk is better.

"It looks like the cola and fruit flavors will work. But the peppermint flavor won't," he said, adding that he has downed a number of glasses of bubbly milk of various flavors.

"Not everybody is as excited as Luksas about carbonated milk."

Toney, manager of JB's Big Boy on University Avenue said, "I don't think it will sell. Milk is something different than soda. Milk is thought of as a healthy drink, as opposed to Coke, or Diet Coke."

It thought was echoed by Ed Kocherhans, general manager of Chi-Chi's restaurant. "Orange juice is orange juice, milk is milk, and carbonated beverages are carbonated beverages."

When asked if people would be willing to buy "milk soda," Melody Walker, manager of the Dairy Queen at University Mall, said that she didn't think that people would like it.

Farmers concerned

Provo to move landfill

By LON M. HUDMAN Universe Staff Writer

Some southern Utah County residents are outraged over Provo City's plan to move its landfill site 5.5 miles north of Elberta's produce-rich fruit orchards.

According to Sam Sellers, Santaquin city recorder, the move is unreasonable. "I can't understand why they would want to put their garbage in our backyard. They should be able to take care of it themselves," he said.

The change in sites is scheduled to take place in the early spring of 1987 and some area orchard owners are especially upset. "Insects and diseases could cause multi-million dollar damage to the fruit industry," said Stanley L. Taylor, Genola resident.

Sellers agreed. "Fruit is our biggest local industry, and I know the orchard owners are seriously worried about contamination."

Santaquin residents are also concerned about possible dangers the influx of traffic from Provo City waste removal trucks may create.

"More than half of our children cross over the main street daily in order to attend school," said Sellers.

"And this could cause problems, especially in the wintertime, if Provo's large trucks are continually passing by."

The controversy is anything but new according to Dale Stephenson, Provo city sanitation director. "This has been a complicated issue for five or six years now," he said.

Provo purchased the landfill site in 1980 and was given 26 conditions, by orchard area residents, to meet before a change of removal sites could take place. These conditions included efforts to try and prevent contamination problems.

"We have done our best to meet the conditions and are willing to work with the residents to avoid problems and protect their businesses," said Stephenson. "But now, they (the residents) are asking for a rehearing to alter the conditions."

Concerning contamination, Stephenson holds more of a wait-and-see theory.

"I can't guarantee that there will be no contamination to fruit trees, but then I don't know they can assure that there will."

According to Sellers, Provo's change of sites could set a precedent for other northern Utah County cities. "If Provo is allowed to have their landfill here, what will stop Orem, American Fork and others from following suit?"

Stephenson, however, claims the idea won't set a precedent. "Payson and Santaquin already have dumpsites near orchard areas, so we're not starting anything."

A rehearing for the issue has been tentatively scheduled for Oct. 7, at which time the conditions will be discussed and either agreed upon or altered.

Paris bomb attack kills five

PARIS (AP) — Terrorists struck the French capital Wednesday for the fifth time in 10 days, demolishing a clothing store with a bomb thrown from a car. Five people were killed and 58 injured, authorities said.

Three people were killed and more than 100 injured in the previous bombings, which prompted the government to adopt tough anti-terrorist measures. Two groups seeking to free three imprisoned Middle Easterners have issued conflicting claims of responsibility for those attacks.

One woman passer-by was blown apart by Wednesday's blast in central Paris, and a witness said another victim was lifted several yards into the air. "It is an incredible sight, many women, children, blood everywhere," said a witness who refused to give his name.

The bomb was tossed from a black BMW carrying two mustachioed men, one of whom rolled down the window and tossed the bomb at the Tati clothing and textile store district, said Laurent Davenas, an assistant state prosecutor.

Windows were blown out at several businesses. The sidewalk in front of the Tati store was covered with glass, debris and bleeding victims, many crying out for help. Police cleared a plaza, the Place du 18 Juin, and used it as a helicopter landing pad to evacuate those with the gravest injuries.

A spokesman for the public hospital authority said 19 of those injured in the 5:25 p.m. bombing were in serious condition.

"The most seriously wounded were treated on the sidewalk in front of Tati," said one witness. "I saw people dying."

Premier Jacques Chirac called an emergency meeting of his top security ministers immediately after the attack.

The attack was the bloodiest since the recent wave of bombings began Sept. 8. Earlier explosions hit a city hall post office, a cafeteria in suburban La Defense, the Pub Renault on the Champs-Elysees Avenue and police headquarters in central Paris.

Groups calling themselves the Committee for Solidarity with Arab and Middle East Political Prisoners and the Partisans of Rights and Freedom have issued conflicting claims of responsibility for the earlier bombings.

Senate confirms Rehnquist

WASHINGTON (A.P.) — The Senate, after three months of divisive debate over William H. Rehnquist's integrity and commitment to equal rights, confirmed him as the nation's 16th chief justice Wednesday.

By a 65-33 vote, the Senate approved President Reagan's elevation of Rehnquist, the Supreme Court's most politically conservative member for nearly 15 years. He replaces retiring Chief Justice Warren E. Burger.

The Senate then immediately confirmed, by a 98-0 vote, the nomination of Antonin Scalia, a federal appeals court judge, to fill the Supreme Court vacancy created by Burger's departure.

Only two of the Senate's 53 Republicans, Lowell Weicker of Connecticut and Charles Mathias of Maryland, voted against the Rehnquist nomination.

Sixteen of the Senate's 47 Democrats voted for the nomination.

Sens. Jake Garn, R-Utah, and Barry Goldwater, R-Arizona, did not participate in either vote.

NASA launches satellite

VANDENBERG AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP) — A $37.3 million weather satellite whose launch had been delayed 16 times was carried into orbit by a rebuilt 25-year-old rocket Wednesday. It was the second successful launch in two weeks for the nation's troubled space program.

A crowd of 120 Air Force and NASA officials and contractors cheered as the 94-foot-tall Atlas E rocket blasted off at 8:52 a.m., from Space Launch Complex-3, carrying the RCA-built NOAA-G satellite into a 518-mile-high polar orbit.

Tax increase definite; Utah faces big deficit

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Utah is facing a $48 million budget deficit, $12 million more than predicted, and Gov. Norm Bangerter said Wednesday that makes a tax increase next year all but inevitable.

In announcing the anticipated fiscal 1986-87 shortfall, the governor said he does not plan to call a special session of the Legislature.

Rather, he said he prefers to let lawmakers cope with the problem in January.

Instead, Bangerter has recommended that state operating budgets be cut by two percent to four percent and said he would ask public education to trim its expenses by two percent.

"We are going to have to have a tax increase next year," Bangerter said following appearances before members of the House and Senate.

"But we have to tighten down, right now."

High unemployment in Utah's mining and oil industries, resulting in severe reductions of sales and income tax revenues, are blamed for much of the projected deficit.

Bangerter said that he could not mandate educational funding cuts.

However, he said that he intends to withhold the transfer of public education money from the general fund to the uniform school fund when the general fund is depleted.

"We have liftoff," the flight commentator said as the rocket, spewing bright orange flames into a thick cloud cover, vanished into the clouds above the base 140 miles northwest of Los Angeles.

Placement in orbit was announced at 10:07 a.m.

"I have goose bumps, just like everyone else," said Julie Andrews, spokeswoman for General Dynamics, which built the booster in 1961 as an intercontinental ballistic missile and refurbished it to launch the satellite.

In the first few minutes after launch, the nose cone covering the satellite and the five engines on the booster separated from the spacecraft on schedule.

Fire kills 177 mine workers

EVANDER, South Africa (AP) — Weary rescue crews collected the bodies of miners sprawled along a mile-deep shaft Wednesday that a raging fire turned into a death trap for at least 177 men. It was South Africa's worst gold mine disaster.

Five miners were still missing and believed dead after the Tuesday fire at Kinross Gold Mine released lethal clouds of chemical fumes in the No. 2 shaft where about 2,400 men were working.

Survivors told of being trapped, unable to breathe, of clouds of smoke and of their desperation as they watched their friends fall dead. "Only about seven of us made it to the surface," said Komiti Mmereko, a black driller with one mining crew.

Officials said 235 of the miners were hospitalized with burns, injuries and chest pains from inhaling the fumes that filled the mine after a fire was accidentally started by a welding machine.

Jerusalem welcomes BYU

Exchange program begins

Students can take classes in Jerusalem this summer because of a exchange program with Bezalel Academy of Art and Design, an affiliate of the Hebrew University.

The program was conceived while John Marshall, director of the Design Department at Bezalel in 1982-83. As a result, John W. Sipherd, director of BYU's Design Department, went to Israel this summer to negotiate the final details. The first group of students from Bezalel will be here in September.

The exchange is between the design departments, the program is for all majors, said Marshall.

Man charged with fraud in Orem

Investigators arrested an Arizonan suspected of construction fraud in Orem.

Leslie D. Blair, 52, of Phoenix, Ariz., was contracted to build a home in northeast Orem for a 62-year-old woman. The woman paid Blair $48,800, but he only delivered $15,000 worth of construction and fled town with the money, according to detective Mike Jensen.

The woman attempted to collect

Those in the design program will be attending some classes at Bezalel, including Israeli and Islamic Art, and also classes in the history of Greek and Egyptian art and architecture. Students in other majors will participate in the regular Jerusalem study abroad program, which involves Near Eastern Studies, Middle Eastern Geography and religion classes, among others.

Marshall and Rob Jensen of Near East Studies are co-directors of the program that begins in mid-April. Thirty-five students are expected to participate in the program.

The Design Department's group may be the first to actually occupy the BYU Jerusalem Center.

"If the group that goes over in January occupies the building, they will be the first, but if not we will be the first," said Marshall. Regardless of which group occupies the Center first, the Spring/Summer 1987 group will be present for the dedication ceremony now scheduled for this summer.

On the way to Israel the group will spend a week in Egypt. For an added fee, the trip home includes a tour of Greece, Italy and England. Interested students should contact John Marshall in the Design Department.

through court action but failed, so she contacted Orem police officials during August, Larsen said.

Blair was apprehended on Sept. 15 in Wickenburg and charged with one count of racketeering and six counts of theft by deception. He is currently being held in the Maricopa County Jail in Phoenix awaiting an appearance before a judge where Blair will decide whether or not to waive extradition.

Should he waive extradition, Blair will be brought back to Utah "in the next few days," Larsen said, where he will face the charges.

Cigarette smoke harmful, could affect nonsmokers

Individuals with heart or lung disease should be warned against inhaling cigarette smoke from other people, Dr. John Holbrook, a member of the Advisory Committee to the U.S. Surgeon General on Smoking and Health.

"An individual has serious coronary disease, emphysema or asthma, then secondhand exposure to cigarette smoke can cause a worsening of that condition," Holbrook said.

Holbrook is also associate professor of internal medicine at the University of California School of Medicine. He is also a member of the American Lung Association Subcommittee on Smoking.

"Cigarette smoke is the product of a chemical reaction," Holbrook said. "When the tobacco leaf burns at a high temperature, the result is the production of hundreds of compounds that are not originally present in the tobacco leaf. Many of them are carcinogenic."

Some of the compounds are carcinogenic and some are toxic gases such as carbon monoxide and carbon monoxide, Holbrook said. He also said that cigarette smoke is mutagenic which means it can alter the genetic makeup of cells.

People exposed to significant amounts of smoke 40 hours a week at work may be comparable to actually smoking a few cigarettes a day, according to Holbrook.

According to Holbrook.

"I think the harmful effect of cigarette smoking is a moral issue because tobacco companies are well aware that cigarettes kill and injure people," Holbrook said. "For the sake of profit, these companies are marketing a product that is killing more than a million people a year in the world, and more than 350,000 a year in the U.S. Over a thousand people a day are dying prematurely."

"The evidence is compelling that the American people and government need to get educated and get the facts about the issues," said Holbrook. "I would encourage people to get involved in working for clean air laws that protect the rights of everyone."

According to a news release from the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, many people are not informed about the hazards of inhaling second-hand smoke.

Holbrook serves in an advisory position with the Coalition on Smoking or Health which is pushing for action at many levels.

"We'd like to see a striking increase in excise tax on cigarettes and a restriction of all advertising and promotion of tobacco products," Holbrook said. "We'd like to see stronger clean-air laws to protect nonsmokers. And we'd like our government to help tobacco farmers get out of that business and retrain them to grow other crops or to take up another career."

Take a break discover BYU's other campus

How many of us have learned to appreciate BYU's "other" campus? Most of us are all too familiar with the obvious university environment: the 25 by 25-foot room with the neatly aligned desks, the ever-conspicuous chalkboard and the clock on the wall that sometimes never runs fast enough.

BYU's classroom setting compares with any other fine university's. However, the other BYU campus provides us with an environment second-to-none, one that has no schedule and is unaffected by time.

The other campus is the grounds, from the landscaped lawns between the library and the Administration building to the wooded area surrounding the south end of the campus.

Lest we take this other campus for granted, Roy Peterman, BYU's grounds manager, will be the first to tell the uninformed about the 283 acres of lawn, the 158 varieties of trees (totaling 8,608) and 72,092 shrubs for which he and his full-time crew of 42 are responsible.

Yet there is even something more than the 313 acres of landscaping on BYU's 650 total acres of campus. There is the animal life that isn't often apparent to those of us who walk from class to class day after day without ever forgetting about the clock on the wall and forever thinking about the next assignment due.

There is the broad-winged hummingbird feeding from the flowers in front of the JKHB. It's not necessary to know that it's unique shoulder configuration allows it to fly backwards to appreciate the little bird's three grams of beauty. And according to BYU vertebrate biologist and bird expert Dr. Clayton White, it is only one of 30 to 40 bird species that passes through campus.

There is the dragonfly, its erratic flight seemingly trailed by its iridescent blue color (find that in a classroom!). It's not necessary to know that it feeds on the wing, mates in flight and lays its eggs in the water while on the wing, to delight in its flight along the banks of the creek at the south end of campus.

There are the water striders skating on the pond near the Bertrand F. Harrison Arboretum. Those long-legged, little brown beasts are quick to pounce on any other small insect (including its own kind sometimes) that falls into the water. One can still laugh at their surface antics without knowing that the fine inverted hairs on their tarsi (feet) prevent them from breaking the surface as they literally walk on water.

There are deer mice, mountain voles, shrews and even muskrats. There are occasional deer, porcupines and skunks, said Mark Belk, a graduate student in terrestrial ecology. If people would open their eyes they would see the animals and surroundings that aren't often seen on other campuses, Belk said.

To some of us it may seem that there isn't much to learn from our other campus. However, there is no denying that there is much to appreciate. Perhaps appreciation is the basis for learning.

In the words of Albert Einstein, the student "must acquire a vivid sense of the beautiful and of the morally good. Otherwise he — with his specialized knowledge — more closely resembles a well-trained dog than a harmoniously developed person."

The above is the opinion of the Editorial Board of The Daily Universe, which consists of the editor, the editorial page editor, a student staff member, a teacher of opinion writing, and the associate publisher; the opinions expressed are not necessarily those of Brigham Young University, its administration, its student body or sponsoring church.

The Board meets Thursdays at 1 p.m. in 562 ELWC. The meeting is open to the public.

Guest opinions welcome

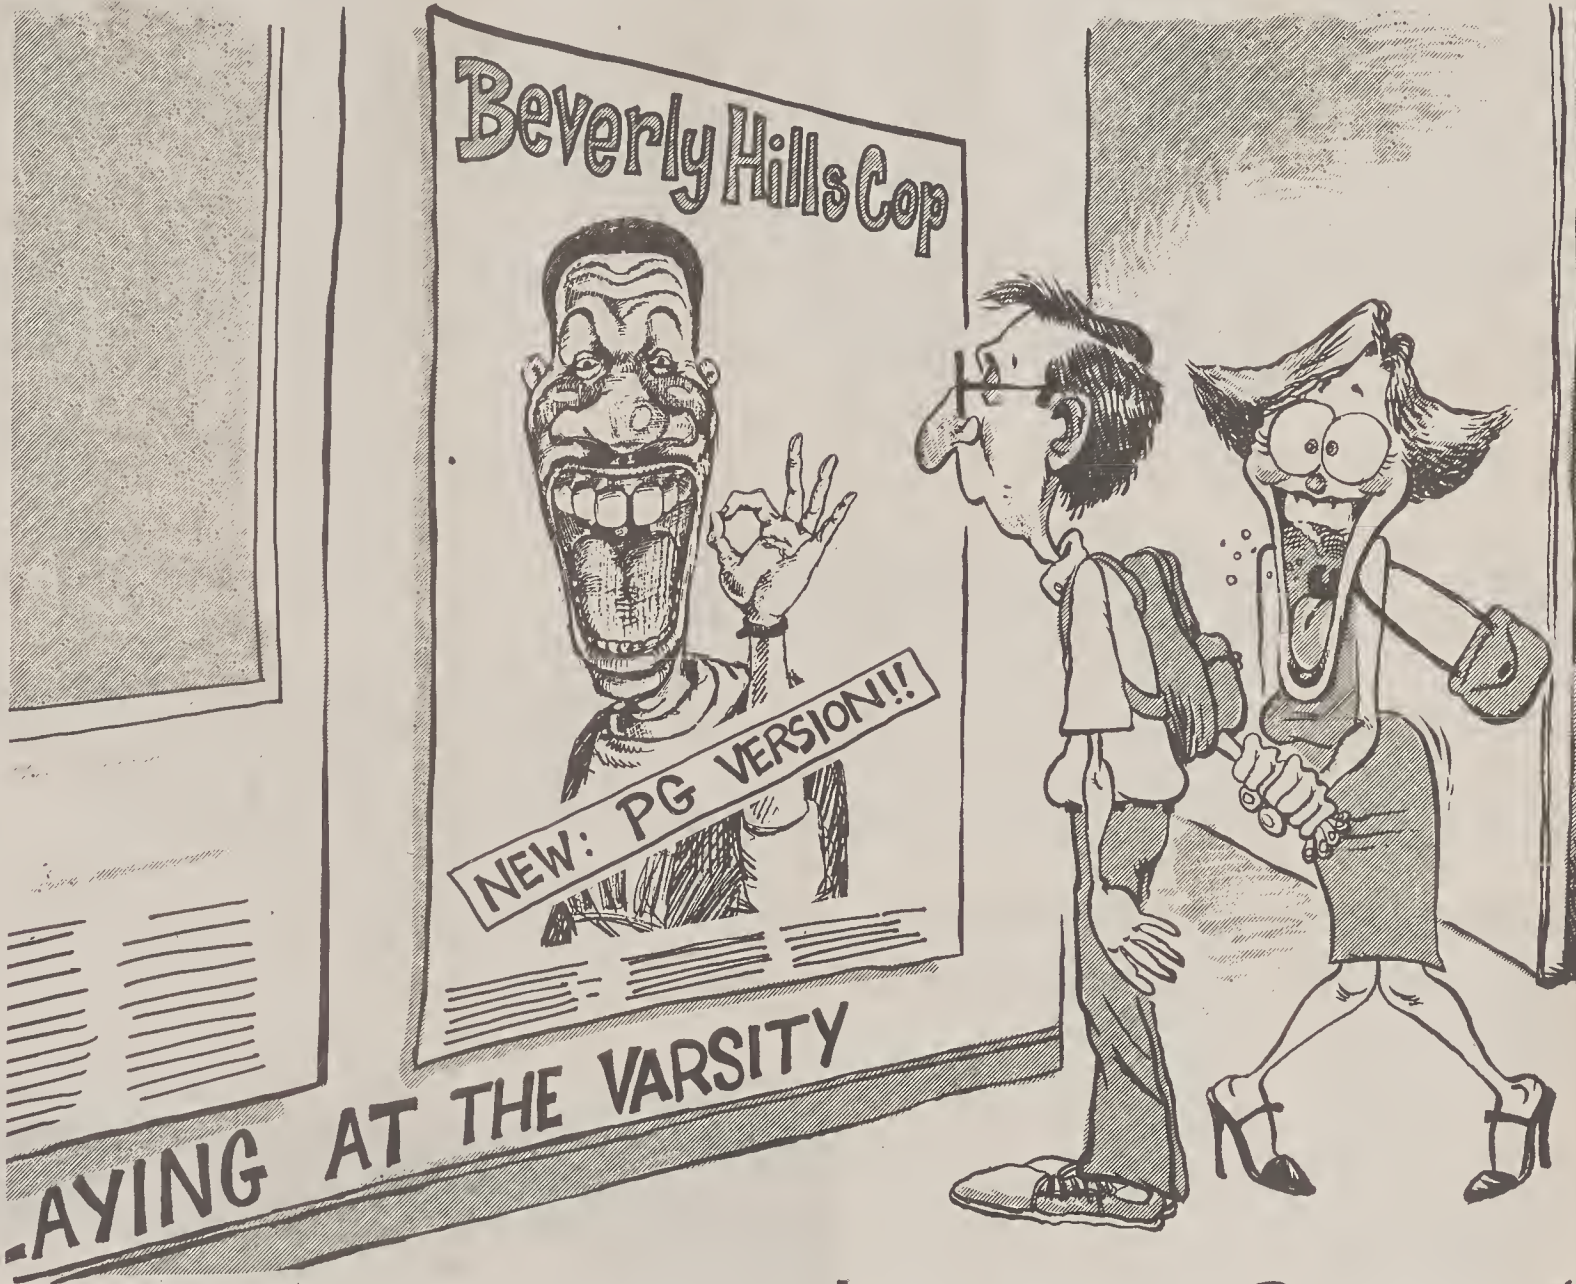

The Daily Universe welcomes guest opinions from students, faculty and staff on all topics of national, international and local interest. BYU is rich in people resources — we invite you to share your wealth of experience and knowledge.

These guest opinions should be submitted to Viewpoints. They should not exceed two and a half pages, typed and double-spaced. Opinions need not be in response to Daily Universe editorials, although we invite dissenting opinions. We encourage vigorous debate as the best way to present a variety of viewpoints, but suggest logical arguments, not personal attacks.

We appreciate all reader input and look forward to publishing your views and feelings.

Please speak up!

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Blind views

Editor:

I object to the editorial printed in Wednesday's (Sept. 10) Daily Universe regarding the Soviet Union. The views it expounded are typical of the close-minded, blind views that created the problems between the United States and the U.S.S.R. in the first place.

In answer to the five recommendations made in the article, I argue that:

1. Kicking Soviet diplomats and journalists out of our country will not stop spying. Most of the information they have access to is relatively unimportant, anyway. It is the United States citizens, such as the Rosenbergs and Christopher John Boyce who do most of the damage by spying. A result of expelling a few Soviet diplomats could be the U.S.S.R. expelling all Americans in return.

2. Refusing to let Aeroflot flights land will damage our reputation with Third World nations and make the gap between the U.S. and the U.S.S.R. even wider.

3. Stopping the sale of American grain to the U.S.S.R. will only wipe out American farmers. Furthermore, an embargo is very close to an act of war, and increased tensions will result between our countries.

4. Cultural exchanges are vital to increased understanding between the American and Russian peoples. They may not serve any political purpose, but they do widen our horizons and make it more possible for peace to be achieved.

5. It makes little difference upon the world situation what happens to Soviet diplomat Zakharov. Whether he is guilty of spying, or not, he should not be used by us as a pawn for punishing the U.S.S.R.

More used books

Editor:

Being a freshman at BYU I am amazed at the price of books. Each class I have requires at least one book that is $15 at the least. Some classes require up to five books plus a supplementary packet. Also, I was only able to get two used books out of eleven.

I realize the University has to update editions often in courses where the information is constantly changing, but it would be very helpful to us poor, struggling students with a very tight budget if there were more used books available. I would rather have a beat up used book for $10 than a new one with the same information for $30. Please help us out in this area. We can get a good education out of old books and eat too!

S. African rights

Editor:

I would like to ask Bonnie Barker what her idea of a more democratic society for South Africa is. Is a more democratic society one where the minority whites retain control over the majority blacks? Where human rights violations are among the highest in the world? Her article on South Africa suggests that because there is disunity among tribal blacks and because black votes would outnumber white votes, thus making white votes "useless," that South Africa should retain its racist status quo.

To think that because a relatively very few blacks have nice homes and live in integrated apartments that apartheid is progressing and blacks really aren't so bad off is incredibly naive. Don't encourage inaction by trying to comfort us with a rosy picture of a three week visit to South Africa in which I'm sure you never saw a single black township. The present racist policies of South Africa are morally and practically unacceptable. The gravity of the situation there cannot be underestimated.

We must do all in our power to see that blacks as well as whites are granted true democracy and not just lip service to an empty democratic ideal.

Grades again

Editor:

I disagree with the Universe's opinion expressed in "What's in a grade?" Shouldn't the teacher be able to decide how much a student has learned rather than the other students in his class? What if everyone in a class learns a superior amount of material? Does that mean that all those students are average? I do not think so.

Back in high school in several of my classes I scored extremely high grades. The "average" students found themselves with D's and the A students received B's. In the previous years they would have received the grades to which they were accustomed.

In your article you said that the BYU Winter 1985 Senior class GF was 3.18. What does that mean?

You were complaining that there was not enough difference between the average student's grade and the superior student's grade.

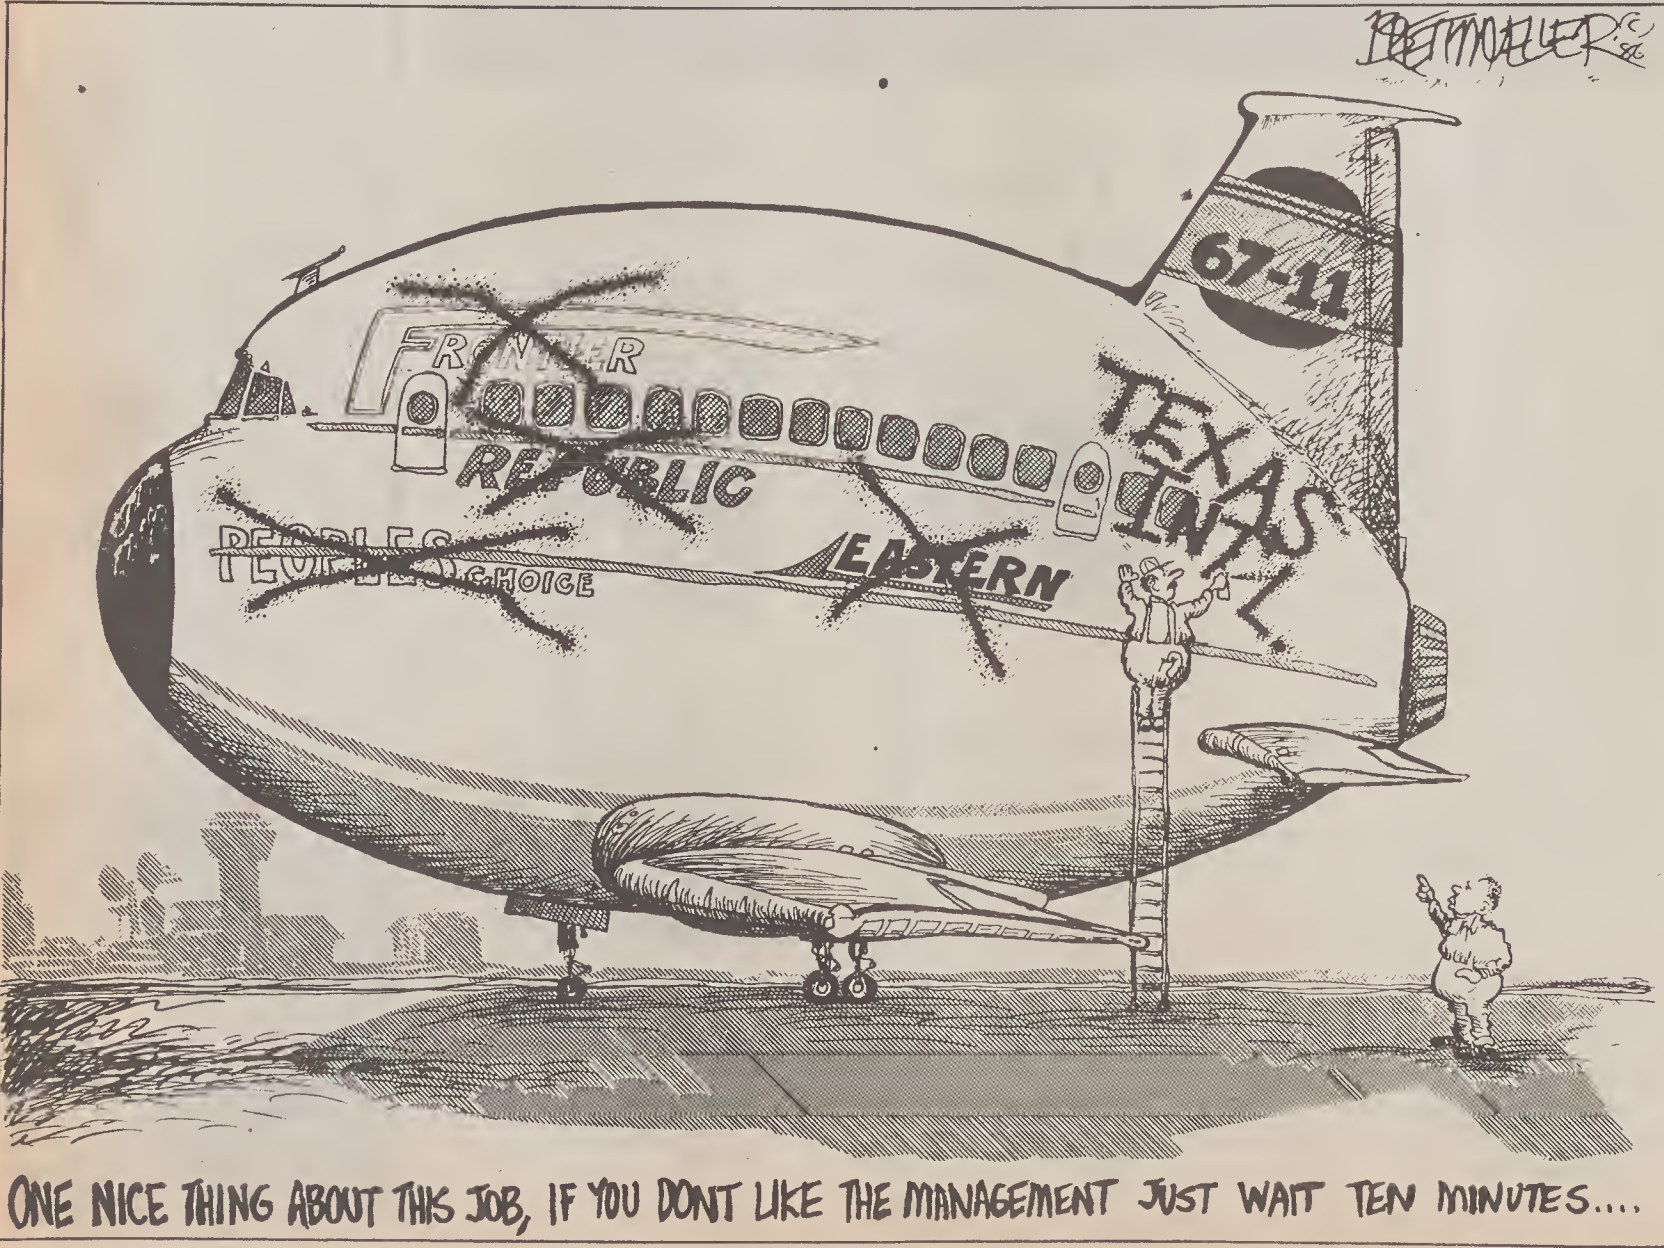

Maybe by the time the Winter 1986 class was ready to graduate most of the below average students had been weeded out. If most of the below average students had made it to graduation the class GPA would have been lower.

Because a diploma is difficult to obtain, only those above average students are going to make it. We all remember that if a student's GF falls to less than 2.0, he will be placed on academic suspension and thrown out of BYU.

If all the students at BYU have GPA from 2.0 to 4.0, then the average student's GPA would be somewhere around 3.0. Grades should be based on how much a student knows and should not be influenced by any other student. You should have considered every aspect of the subject before printing.

Trust for the press: Danilooff, Zakharov provide a case study

An innocent man is imprisoned, the victim of a frame-up. "A packet was thrown into his hands at the moment of his arrest," said a spokesman.

Does this sound familiar? It is the story of accused Soviet spy Gennady Zakharov, according to Soviet spokesman Gennady Gerasimov. It is also the story of American journalist Nicholas Danilooff.

One week after Zakharov is arrested in New York, Danilooff is arrested in Moscow under similar circumstances, for the same crime.

The American government and press cry foul at what they say is an obvious frame-up.

The war of rhetoric between the United States and the Soviet Union escalates, and international tension increases.

The stage is set for an unusual test of the American press and public. The Soviet people are told that Danilooff is a spy and that Zakharov was framed, while the American people are told just the opposite.

Which side is telling the truth? If you think the answer is obvious, think again.

The Soviet press is often thought of as a heavy-handed propaganda machine that could never function in the U.S. We may even think the glibly Soviets believe everything they read in their government run newspaper. If we believe everything we read in the American press, how much better are we? Consider our reaction to the Danilooff case.

Is it possible that the Soviets believe that Danilooff is a spy? Perhaps a trial by jury would find the event in that park in Lenin was not a frame, but a trap.

Is it possible that the American people have assumed that Zakharov is guilty without the benefit of a trial? Perhaps a trial by jury would find the event in a Queens subway station for which Zakharov was arrested an entrapment.

Our system of government depends on the ability of the people to discern truth for themselves. When we publish something in print, it is easy to assume that it is true.

In fact, understanding the truth usually requires some thought and looking for more facts.

We all believe Danilooff is innocent and want him back in the U.S. That is not the point.

This episode has provided a opportunity for us to evaluate the way we react to what we read. Are we accepting what is easy to believe or are we seeking the truth? Think what you read.

"Y" Guy Calendar

As the door opens, a cloud of steam rolls across the linoleum tile. In the mist of the wafting vapors the vague figure of a real man sits contemplating. Beads of perspiration slowly trickle down his brow and settle upon his round spectacles. His muscles ache from the rigorous executive nine in which he tested every club available at BYU. The "Y" Guy has only a couple of days left to make his decision on which club he will join to fulfill his ultimate BYU experience. Easing back in the jacuzzi, the "Y" Guy contemplates the forthcoming weekend.

CLUB WEEK Sept. 15-19

Out of the 160 clubs to choose from the "Y" Guy has narrowed his selection to 159 clubs. (He determined he didn't have enough hair follicles to join the Barber-shop Quartet.) But the week is ending soon and the "Y" Guy still needs to find just the right club to tee off the school year. These last two days the "Y" Guy will be at the Garden Court interviewing with the members to help make his selection.

CONCERTS IMPROMPTU Friday Sept. 19

After reviewing this weeks acts, the "Y" Guy guarantees that you won't want to miss Concerts Impromptu at 7:00 p.m. in 375 of the ELWC. A colorful array of musicians, singers, and comedians will keep you and that "Y" gal warm with music and laughter.

BYU vs. WASHINGTON Saturday Sept. 20

Doors open at 12:00 — Game begins at 2:00 $2/ with ID $4/ w/out ID — open seating —

When the doors open at 12:00 the "Y" Guy will be at the Marriott Center because he's a loyal Cougar (the number one fan). The game starts at 2:00 and will be shown on a giant screen, closed circuit television. Come with your friends and enjoy Buck, Futrell, and Knight in living color and stereophonic sound. It's a Cougar football party with slo-mos and replays.

Film Society Presents "NOTORIOUS" Sept. 19 and 20

playing Friday and Saturday at 7:00 and 9:00 p.m. in 214 CRBT (Crabtree Theatre)

One of Alfred Hitchcock's best cloak and dagger films and the "Y" Guy's favorite. (The "Y" Guy and Hitchcock have a lot in common: suspense, mystery, no hair.) Ingrid Bergman stars as the daughter of a treasonous man and Cary Grant is the agent that falls in love with her.

ASBYU VOLUNTEERS NEEDED

So you've been here for a few years and you're still not involved? The "Y" Guy didn't get involved with ASBYU until his 5th year and he says there is still time. ASBYU is eager for your applications. Come up to the 4th floor of the ELWC today.

WKRP star to speak to interested BYU students

By DIANE R. SISK
Universe Staff Writer

Gordon Jump, actor, producer and radio personality, will speak Friday to students and faculty members of the Theatre, Speech and Cinema Department.

Jump is best known for his role in "WKRP in Cincinnati". He also starred in "Soap" and will appear in several episodes of "Golden Girls" this coming season.

Jump is scheduled to speak several times during the day.

At 9 a.m. he will speak to acting students.

At 11 a.m. he will speak to the entire department, and at 3 p.m. he will speak to film students. These lectures will take place at the Pardoe Theater in the HFAC.

All students on campus, who are interested in theatre or film production, are invited to attend these lectures.

Jump will discuss his role as an actor in film and theater as it relates to his membership in The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

Jump will also discuss his experiences acting on the stage and in television.

He will explain how his training lead him from stage to radio and then to television.

There will be a question and answer period after each lecture.

Professor Douglas Bush will perform Friday Sept. 19, in the Madsen Recital Hall, HFAC. The concert will begin at 7:30 p.m. and is free.

Bush will play Bach at faculty recital in Madsen Recital Hall; free concert

By MATTHEW R. BRYAN
Universe Staff Writer

Professor Douglas Bush, of BYU's organ faculty, will present the eighth in a series of 20 Johann Sebastian Bach recitals Sept. 19.

The free concert will begin at 7:30 in the Madsen Recital Hall, HFAC, and will feature several of Bach's works which are representative of his most active period in organ composition.

The recitals were inaugurated in 1985 as a way to celebrate the 300th anniversary of Bach's birth.

"Bach's works represent the highest achievement that has ever been realized in terms of organ music," said Bush. "His compositions are at the very core of all the organ literature," he added.

According to Bush, the organ works of Bach are and will continue to be the measuring standard for all organists.

The recital will begin with Fantasia in G major, and 12 choral preludes from the "Orgelbuchlein" or "little organ book." The preludes are very short pieces based on the hymns of the church which Bach wrote during several days while under house arrest.

The preludes embody "every technical difficulty found in major organ works," said Bush.

"If I knew I were going to be marooned and I could take one work with me, it would be those," said Bush, noting their diversity and variety as well as their instructional value.

The "Orgelbuchlein" selections epitomize Bach's dual emphasis on learning and worship. "To Bach, to be in a state of learning was a state of grace, and these preludes are an offering of praise to God as well as valuable practical instruction," Bush said.

The final selection of the recital will be Fantasia and Fugue in G minor, one of the most well-known and widely used of Bach's works. Also planned for the recital are Alleluia in D major and Concerto in E-flat Major.

Bush, a native of Montana, is a professor of organ and music history at BYU. He has concertized extensively in the United States and Europe and has been a featured soloist in several concert series.

Members of the Colegium Musicum, a faculty vocal ensemble, will also participate in the recital.

Garn 'feeling good' after hospital release

WASHINGTON (AP)— Sen. Jake
Garn and daughter Susan Garn Horne walked out of Georgetown University Hospital Wednesday, exactly a week after Garn donated one of his kidneys to her in an act he said "will mean more to me than anything I could ever do."

Local blood bank recently accredited

The Utah Valley Regional Medical Center's blood bank and transfusion service has been commended for above average medical, technical and administrative performance.

The medical center has recently been granted renewal of accreditation by the American Association of Blood
Banks (AABB), according to Steven Freestone, M.D., director of the UVRMC lab.

Accreditation follows an intensive on-site inspection by specially trained representatives of the AABB and establishes that the level of medical, technical and administrative performance within the facility meets or exceeds the rigorous standards set by the association.

"The AABB's inspection and accreditation procedures are voluntary," Freestone said. "The primary goal of the program is to assist facilities like ours to achieve excellence, and thus provide higher quality blood, blood components and other services to patients."

The standards set for accreditation in the United States also provide the basis of practice for similar facilities around the world, according to a news release by UVRMC.

Founded in 1947, the AABB is the only national organization in the United States devoted exclusively to blood banking and blood transfusion services. Its membership of scientists, physicians, nurses, medical technologists and administrators is engaged in all aspects of the field.

"I'm feeling great," said Susan. "I feel terrific," said her father.

Garn, a 53-year-old Utah Republican, told reporters, "We couldn't be more pleased with the outcome" of the transplant surgery performed
Sept. 10.

"It's exiting to know she's got that old space kidney working inside her," said the senator, who flew aboard the space shuttle Discovery in April 1985.

G. Baird Helfrich, chief of George-town's division of transplantation, said Susan, 27, "has experienced no rejection activity," and passed her one-week benchmark."

Trucks, cycles injure game

Utah asks hunters to obey rules

Hunters are being encouraged to observe off-road driving guidelines and take the garbage from their camps with them to make hunting a better experience for everyone.

Utah Division of Wildlife Resources and Uinta National Forest personnel encourage hunters to prepare early by obtaining a free Game Proclamation and Forest Travel Map from any Forest of UDWR office. The Game Proclamation outlines legal hunting areas, types of game and dates; the Travel Map shows areas where hunters can drive legally in the forest.

"Those who prepare ahead and know the regulations will have the best hunting experience," said Lyle Gomm, Uinta Recreation Officer.

Hunters are asked to strictly observe off-highway vehicle (OHV) regulations. "There's nothing more aggravating than for a hunter who has hiked into a secluded area to hear the loud noise of a motorcycle scaring away the game," said Rodney John, UDWR Central Regional Supervisor.

Hunting success is highest in areas where there are no motorized vehicles according to John.

Habitat destruction by motorized vehicles traveling in unauthorized areas is an important consideration for wildlife.

OHV's can destroy vegetation which depletes food sources for wildlife and livestock.

Biologists from both agencies are especially concerned about off-road travel in wet meadows, streams, up steep hillsides or snowed-in locations. Travel in these areas usually results in extensive rutting and damage which is sometimes permanent.

Trash left at campsites can also be harmful to wildlife. Autopsies conducted by the UDWR last year indicated that deer had eaten bits of plastic bags.

The plastic blocked their digestive system resulting in death.

The Uinta "Pack-In, Pack-Out" program has saved taxpayers an estimated $80,000 yearly by eliminating the need for garbage pickup services, according to Lyle Gomm of the Uinta National Forest.

"For this to continue every hunter needs to participate. Our patrols will be prepared to issue citations to groups who do not leave clean camps," Gomm said.

Both agencies will have patrols in the field to answer questions and enforce regulations.

Locals donate surplus, relief in sight for poor

Citizens of Salt Lake and Utah counties donated 18,000 pounds of potatoes and 84 boxes of peaches this year to the Utahns Against Hunger (UAH) drive known as Share-the-Harvest.

Share-the-Harvest donation drives help people in need of food. So far this year Share-the-Harvest has distributed over 2,500 sacks of food.

"Utahns Against Hunger is concerned with the nutritional well-being of Utah's low-income people," said Steve Blackman, UAH special projects coordinator.

Share-the-Harvest monitors food assistance programs to ensure the effectiveness of low-income food resources in Utah.

"People who gave donations take the excess from their gardens and donate sacks full of food to help those in need," said Blackman.

Provo gets involved

Food is distributed in six areas in Utah. Provo became involved for the first time this year.

Blackman said donations were slow getting started and eventually helped people but with not as much volume as the other five areas from the other communities.

"We have found the public to be very supportive of our drive, but when we start it in new areas it takes a while before we have much of a response," Blackman said.

"Among the six areas, we had between 200 and 300 volunteers who helped in the distribution and handed out information on more permanent food programs which also offer long term aid," said Blackman.

All food donated

The food the pantry receives is strictly from donations. Schools initiate drives, collect the food then give it to the pantry.

"We receive weekly donations from churches, and we have had donations of outstanding proportions from the community," said Fletcher.

Canned goods were also donated for this drive. With the Kearns area donating the majority of the food, the Ogden and the Salt Lake City area received outstanding amounts of garden donations as well, according to Blackman.

"We think all areas did very well over all, and we plan to put more effort into the project next year to make more people aware of what is available," said Blackman.

One food pantry in Provo, Mountain Lands CAP, has been aiding 80 to 100 people a month.

"Our food bank is for people who declare a need of temporary help in getting food," said Milt Fletcher, director of Utahns Against Hunger.

He said the agency helps people with counseling and discusses the future.

"Many of these people qualify for food stamps, and through our referrals, the needy are helped by the churches to which they belong," said Fletcher.

Training courses available

UAH offers general, and in-depth, training on federal food programs and emergency food pantry start-up and operation.

"Workshops are scheduled several times during the year for all interested groups and individuals," said Blackman.

Training is also available in response to groups with special training needs and interests, he said.

He said this kind of education opens people's eyes to the hunger that exists in local communities.

Share-the-Harvest is just one of the projects UAH heads to generate food donations from the communities in Utah.

In addition to the Share-the-Harvest program, Utah and Salt Lake Counties provide food stamps, school lunch and breakfast, child care food, senior congregate meals, womens, infants and children supplemental food and the Meals on Wheels program.

Senate OKs health funding

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate has passed a Labor, Health and Human Services appropriations bill and given its initial approval to permit the Utah Department of Health to once again receive family planning funds, Sen. Orrin Hatch has announced.

In 1984, the health department lost its federal Title X funding because of a state law requiring parental consent for minors. A U.S. District Court judge ruled that requiring parental consent for use of federally-funded family planning services violated congressional intent.

Hatch said the $114 billion bill, which funds the departments of Labor, Education and Health and Human Services, includes $600,000 for a demonstration project in Utah to study the effects of parental consent laws on the delivery of family planning services to minors.

"Much of the general debate about Title X in Utah has centered on the wisdom of Utah's parental consent requirement for minors," Hatch said. "What has been lost in the discussion is the fact that when the court ruled against the state, it created a considerable hardship for low-income women who live in rural areas where women's health services are not easily available."

The Utah Republican said Title X also provides funding for venereal disease screening, infertility assistance, adoption, education and other counseling services.

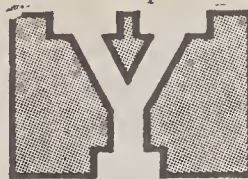

"The court's action effectively restricted the accessibility to important health services for these women," Hatch said. "Surely, that was not the intent of Congress."

He said the study would provide statistical data on the impact of parental consent laws.

"Right now Utah and the rest of the country are struggling to come to grips with the problem of teen-age pregnancy," he said. "This demonstration project will provide hard information as opposed to rhetoric and speculation."
